Honey-hued buildings, cobbled alleys and a historic old town make this Balearic beauty one of the Mediterranean's most-loved islands. Head to Palma's shopping district to purchase glitzy beachwear, stop by a café to people-watch in public plaças or delve into museums and galleries.

Fera

Just around the corner from Palma's storied street Jaime III, Fera is ideally located for some mid-shopping respite. Stop by for a relaxed lunch of Mediterranean-Asian cuisine serving everything from a kimchi, salmon and avocado roll to cod grilled in an almond crust. Pair your meal with a refreshing drink – the restaurant has innovative cocktail recipes and a hand-picked wine list of over 60 bottles.
